

ABOUT SURF ARTIST DREW BROPHY

Drew Brophy is the best known surf artist in history. He has been a professional artist for over twenty five years. His art has a powerful, distinctive style that is recognized worldwide.

When asked what he does for a living, Drew will say “It’s my job to make things look cool!”

Drew’s art career first took off when, as a young surfer, he started painting his edgy art onto surfboards. He became known worldwide for painting surfboards using the new techniques that he developed with water-based paint pens

He eventually became known as the most influential surf artist in history, literally changing the way that surfboards were painted. Now, surfers all over are using Drew’s painting techniques to decorate their boards.

Collectors of Drew’s original paintings include Google Irvine, Sheryl Crow, Jon Bon Jovi, Eddie Vedder, Hard Rock Casino and Billabong.

Drew has created thousands of paintings. Many of them are licensed to add vibrant life to items such as surfboards, clothing, skateboards and so much more. Having the freedom to experiment with many different surfaces and products allowed Drew to grow tremendously as an artist.

A big wave surfer, Drew’s inspiration comes from surfing and traveling the globe with his wife and son. The life they strive to live is the life he paints, one filled with perfect waves, sun swept beaches and the freedom to do what brings you joy.

You can find Drew’s art featured in over two dozen printed books, fourteen tv shows and hundreds of magazines and newspapers.
